Desertion and absence without leave.

131. If a seaman lawfully engaged or an apprentice belonging to a Bahamian ship commits any of the following acts, he shall be guilty of an offence and liable to be punished as follows —

- (a) if he deserts from his ship, he shall be guilty of the offence of desertion and be liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for three months, and he shall also be liable to forfeit all or any part of the effects he leaves on board and the wages which he has then earned and, where the master or owner of the ship has engaged a substitute in his place at a higher rate of wages than the rate at which wages had been stipulated to be paid to him, to satisfy that excess;
- (b) if he neglects or refuses without reasonable cause to join his ship or to proceed to sea in his ship, or is absent without leave at any time within the period of twenty-four hours next before the ship's sailing from a port either at the commencement or during the progress of a voyage, or is absent at any time without leave and without sufficient reason from his ship or from his duty, and the act or omission does not constitute or is not treated by the master as constituting the offence of desertion, he shall be guilty of the offence of absence without leave and be liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for two months, and shall also be liable to forfeit out of his wages a sum not exceeding two days' pay and in addition for every twenty-four hours of absence either a sum not exceeding six days' pay or any expenses properly incurred in hiring a substitute.

132.(1) Where a seaman belonging to a Bahamian ship has been lawfully engaged and has received under his agreement an advance note, and after negotiating his advance note wilfully or through misconduct fails to join his ship or deserts therefrom before the note becomes payable, he shall be guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine of fifty dollars or to imprisonment for two months.

(2) This section shall not take away or limit any remedy, by suit or otherwise, of any person in respect of the negotiation of the advance note, or which an owner or master would otherwise have for breach of contract.

133.Where it is shown to the satisfaction of a registrar that a seaman belonging to a Bahamian ship and lawfully engaged has wilfully or through misconduct failed to join his ship, the registrar shall report the matter to the Director, and the Director may direct that the seaman's certificate of discharge shall be withheld for such period as he may think fit, and while the seaman's certificate of discharge is so withheld a registrar and any other person having the custody of the documents may, notwithstanding anything in this or any other Act, refuse to furnish copies of any of his certificates of discharge or certified extracts of any particulars of service or character.

Certificate of discharge may be withheld.

134.If a seaman on or before being engaged wilfully and fraudulently makes a false statement of the name of his last ship or alleged last ship, or wilfully and fraudulently makes a false statement of his own name, he shall be guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine of fifty dollars or to imprisonment for two months.

Deserters from foreign ships.

(2) Where a seaman or apprentice deserts in The Bahamas from a merchant ship registered in a country to which this section applies, the master of the ship may apply to a court for aid in apprehending the deserter, and the court and its officers shall give all aid within their power, and for that purpose the court may, on information given on oath, issue a warrant for the deserter to be conveyed on board the ship, or delivered to the master or mate of the ship or to the owner of the ship or his agent to be so conveyed.

- (b) he left the ship before the completion of the voyage or engagement; and
- (c) an entry of his desertion was duly made in the official log-book, and the desertion shall thereupon be deemed to be proved so far as relates to any forfeitures of wages under this Part, unless the seaman or apprentice can produce a proper certificate of discharge or can otherwise show to the satisfaction of the court that he had sufficient reasons for leaving his ship.

138.(1) Where any wages or effects are forfeited under this Part for desertion from a ship, the effects may be sold, and the wages or effects (or the money arising from sale of the effects) shall be applied towards reimbursing the expenses caused by the desertion to the master or owner of the ship, and any balance remaining shall be paid to the Government.

Application of forfeiture.

(2) Where any wages are forfeited under this Part for any cause other than of desertion, the forfeiture shall, in the absence of any specific provision to the contrary, be in favour of the master or owner by whom the wages are payable.

(12) If the master of a ship fails without reasonable cause to comply with this section, he shall, without prejudice to any other liability, be guilty of an offence.

(13) This section shall not apply in the case of an absent seaman where —

- (d) the question of the forfeiture of the wages and effects of the seaman has been dealt with in proceedings lawfully instituted before the termination of the voyage or within forty-eight hours of the arrival of the ship at the port at which the voyage terminates.

(14) In this section, “effects” include the proceeds of any sale of any effects sold under this section, and the effects may be sold by a registrar or consular officer in such manner as he thinks fit when they are delivered to him unless the Minister directs to the contrary, and if not sold then may be sold by the Minister as and when he thinks fit unless they are delivered to the seaman.

- (b) if defrayed by a registrar or consular officer or any other person, shall be a charge upon the ship to which the seaman belonged, and may also be recovered from the person who is the owner of the ship for the time being, or, where the ship has been lost, from the person who was the owner of the ship at the time of the loss, or (where the ship has been transferred to some person) from the owner for the time being or from the person who was the owner of the ship at the time of the transfer, at the suit of the registrar or consular officer or other person defraying the expenses, or (if they have been allowed out of public money) as a debt to the Government, either by ordinary process of law or in the court and in the manner in which wages may be recovered by seamen.

154.(1) Where a Bahamian ship is transferred or disposed of, any seaman belonging to that ship shall be discharged unless he consents in writing to complete the voyage of the ship if it is continued.

155.(1) The master of a Bahamian ship shall not leave a seaman behind at any foreign port or place except where the seaman is discharged in accordance with this Act, unless he has had the certificate of a registrar or consular officer endorsed on the crew agreement certifying the cause of the seaman being left behind, whether the cause is unfitness or inability to proceed to sea, desertion, disappearance or otherwise.

(2) The registrar or consular officer to whom an application is made for a certificate under this section may examine the grounds on which a seaman is to be left behind, and for that purpose may, if he thinks fit, administer oaths and grant or refuse the certificate as he thinks just, but the certificate shall not be unreasonably withheld.

(1) Where any expenses are incurred by a consular officer on behalf of the Government under section 159, or are incurred by the Government of a foreign country and are repaid to such foreign country by the Government, the Minister may pay to such consular officer or foreign government the amount of such expenses out of any moneys available for the purpose or out of any moneys appointed for that purpose.

(2) Any or all money paid by the Minister under subsection (1) of this section, together with the wages, if any, due to a distressed seaman, shall be a charge upon the ship to which the seaman belonged, and shall be a debt due to the Government from the master or owner of the ship at the time of the loss, or where the ship has been transferred either from the owner for the time being or from the person who was the owner of the ship at the time of the transfer, and also (if the ship is a foreign ship) from the person whether principal or agent who engaged the seaman for service in the ship.

(3) A debt under this section, in addition to any fines and consular fees which may have been incurred, may be recovered by the Minister on behalf of the Government either by ordinary process of law or in the court and manner in which wages may be recovered by seamen.

(4) In any proceeding for recovery of a debt under this section, the production of an official account of the expenses furnished in accordance with this Act, and proof of payment of the expenses by or on behalf of the Government, shall be prima facie evidence that the expenses were incurred or repaid under this Act by or on behalf of the Government.

161. Any person belonging to a Bahamian ship who wrongfully forces a seaman on shore and leaves him behind, or otherwise causes a seaman to be wrongfully left behind at any place, shall be guilty of an offence.

Forcing ashore.

162. For the purposes of this Part, either the port at which a seaman was shipped, or a port in the country to which he belonged, or some other port agreed to by the seaman (in the case of a discharged seaman) at the time of his discharge, is a proper return port, but in the case of a seaman shipped in The Bahamas the return port shall be that in which he was shipped unless otherwise agreed to by him as aforesaid.

Proper return port.

163. (1) A seaman may be sent to a proper return port by any reasonable route.

Manner of return of seaman.

(2) Provision may be made for the return of a seaman, if he is fit for work, by providing him with suitable employment on board a ship, proceeding to a proper return port, that is in want of men to make up its complement or, if that is not practicable, by providing the seaman with a passage in any ship or aircraft or in other public transport and by providing for his maintenance during the journey.

(3) Where the master of a ship is required under this Part to provide for the return of a discharged seaman to a proper return port, the master may, instead of providing the seaman's passage or the expenses of his journey, deposit with a consular officer such sum as the consular officer considers sufficient to defray the expenses of the return of the seaman to a proper return port.

(4) Where a seaman is repatriated as a member of a crew, he shall be entitled to the appropriate remuneration for work done during the voyage.

Questions as to return of seaman.

164. When any question arises as to what return port a seaman is to be sent, or as to the route by which he should be sent, that question shall be decided by a registrar or consular officer, and in deciding the question, the registrar or consular officer shall have regard both to the convenience of the seaman and to the expense involved and also (if it is the case) to the fact that a ship which is in want of men to make up its complement is about to proceed to a proper return port or to a port in the vicinity thereof; but nothing in this section shall relieve the owner from the obligation and expense of returning the seaman to his proper return port.

Minister may assist distressed.

165.(1) The Minister may, whenever he deems it necessary, spend money on the temporary relief in The Bahamas, in such manner as he thinks advisable, of shipwrecked, destitute or otherwise distressed seamen not otherwise entitled to relief under this Act or under the laws of the country to which the ship belongs.

(2) Any expenses incurred for shipwrecked, destitute or otherwise distressed seamen under this section, shall be repaid to the Government by the master, owner or agent of the vessel to which the distressed seaman belonged, and may be recovered by the Minister on behalf of the Government in the same manner as expenses incurred outside The Bahamas for distressed seamen of Bahamian ships are recovered.

(2) Nothing in this section shall subject the owner of a ship to any liability by reason of the ship being sent to sea in an unseaworthy state where, owing to special circumstances, the sending of the ship to sea in such state was reasonable and justifiable.

210.(1) Where, whether on complaint or representation made to him or otherwise, an inspector has reason to believe that any Bahamian ship, or any foreign ship in a port in The Bahamas, is an unsafe ship he may —

- (a) in the case of a Bahamian ship, suspend her certificate of registry; or
- (b) in the case of a foreign ship, cause her to be detained,

 - (b) any ship which is, by reason of the defective condition of her hull, equipment or machinery, or by reason of undermanning, overloading or improper loading, unfit to proceed to sea without serious danger to human life, having regard to the nature of the service for which she is intended.

211. (1) If it appears that there was not reasonable and probable cause, by reason of the condition of the ship or the act or default of the owner, for the detention of a ship under this Part as an unsafe ship, the Minister shall be liable to pay to the owner of the ship his costs of and incidental to the detention and survey of the ship, and also compensation for any loss or damage sustained by him by reason of the detention or survey. Liability for costs and damages.

(2) In addition to any other remedy provided by law, the persons entitled to any such contribution as aforesaid shall have, for the purpose of recovering contribution subject to this Act, the same rights and powers as the persons entitled to sue for damages in the first instance.

Provided that where any provision of this Act which permits, authorizes, requires or directs any such court or authority is permissive merely, all things done by the court or authority pursuant to this Act shall be deemed to have been validly done for all the purposes of this Act.

266. Where it appears to the Minister that the government of a foreign country is desirous that any of the provisions of this Act, that do not apply to the ships of that country should apply, and there are no special provisions in this Act for that application, the Minister may by order direct that any specified provisions of this Act shall, subject to any limitations contained in the order, apply to the ships of that country and to the owners, masters, seamen and apprentices of those ships when not locally within the jurisdiction of the government of that country, in the same manner in all respects as if those ships were Bahamian ships.
