REGULATORY FRAMEWORK GOVERNING MIGRANT WORKERS

Updated May 2023

PRIVATE SECTOR WORKERS (other than domestic workers)

KEY LEGISLATION
- Federal Decree-Law No. 33/2021 Concerning the Regulation of Labour Relations (hereafter referred to as the “Labour Law”).

RECRUITMENT
- An employer cannot charge the worker or collect from him/her recruitment and employment costs, either directly or indirectly. If the worker changes to a new employer during the probation period, the employer may be able to claim (part of) the recruitment costs from the new employer.

RECRUITMENT FEES
- Employers cannot charge workers any costs or charges, whether directly or indirectly unless specified in the law. Likewise, the recruitment agency is prohibited from demanding or accepting, directly or indirectly, any commission for securing the job from any domestic worker or to charge them any expenses.

PASSPORT CONFISCATION
- It is illegal for an employer to confiscate a passport. Domestic workers should be allowed to retain all official documents. In case the employer withholds the domestic worker’s identification documents, he could be fined 500 dirhams.

WORKING CONDITIONS

CONTRACT
- The employment contract must be in accordance with the relevant Approved Standard Employment Contract based on whether the contract is full-time, part-time, temporary, flexible, remote, or job-sharing. The worker and employer can agree to introduce new clauses into the approved contract form only if they are compliant with legal provisions.

- Domestic workers may be ‘full-time’ or ‘temporary’.

Temporary workers are employed by the respective recruitment office which legally is their employer, but the domestic worker’s obligations remain to the person/family to whom the worker provides the services.

PAYMENT OF WAGES

Employers must pay workers via the Wage Protection System (WPS) at least once a month, or on the dates specified in the work contract if the frequency of payment is greater than monthly. The payment of wages can be made in another currency than the Emirati Dirham (AED), if agreed between the two parties in the employment contract.27

The only employers exempt from the WPS are fishing boats and public taxis (owned by nationals), banks and houses of worship.28

Employers have to pay domestic workers on a monthly basis no later than ten days after the due date. A written receipt must be provided.29

The employer can deduct up to a quarter of the worker’s salary if the worker caused any loss, damage or destruction to any tools, machines, equipment or products owned by the employer, kept in the custody of the worker or under his/her disposal.30

Starting 1 April 2023 employers are required to register and pay the wages of domestic workers through the Wage Protection System if the worker is employed as:

- Private Agricultural Engineer
- Private Messenger
- Home Care Provider
- Private Tutor
- Private Trainer.31

For the other 14 domestic work professions (including housemaid, security guard, physical labour worker, housekeeper, cook, nanny/babysitter) the employer is not obliged, but may voluntarily pay the worker through the Wage Protection System from 1 January 2023. 32

ANNUAL LEAVE AND SICK LEAVE

Annual leave – paid 30 days per year upon completion of one year of employment. If the period of service is less than a year but more than six months, the worker is entitled to two days leave for each month until completing 12 months of service.33 The Labour Law does not provide for annual leave during the first six months of employment, but leave may be taken during the probationary period with the employer’s consent.34 Different calculations apply to part-time workers.

Sick leave – Workers are entitled to 90 days of sick leave per year: the first 15 days at full pay; the next 30 days at half pay; and the remaining 45 days at no pay.35

Annual leave – paid 30 days per year of service upon completion of one year of employment. If the period of service is less than a year but more than six months, the worker is entitled to two days leave for each month until completing 12 months of service.36

The employer may determine the timing of the annual leave. If the nature of the work requires the worker to work during part or all of the annual leave, it is either carried over to the following year or must be compensated in cash.37 (It is prohibited for a domestic worker to work during his/her annual leave more than once during two consecutive years.)

Sick leave – Workers are entitled to 30 days of sick leave per year, the first 15 days on full pay and the remaining 15 days on half pay, subject to providing a medical report.38 If the domestic worker’s behavior contributed to the illness, no payment will be made during sick leave.39

GRIEVANCES AND DISPUTE RESOLUTION

Conciliation

Individual complaints must be launched within 30 days of either of the worker or employer failing to fulfill the obligations stated in the employment contract or the law. The individual labour complaint can be registered via the MOHRE website or app, or by contacting the hotline for non-nationals (04-6659999). A text message is sent to both parties with details of the complaint and the process. A legal officer aims to facilitate an amicable dispute resolution. If a settlement is not reached within two weeks of submission of the complaint, the MOHRE can refer the dispute to the competent court or cancel the work permit as decided by the legal officer.

A collective labour claim can be filed with the MOHRE in instances where a dispute arises between the employer and a group of more than 50 employees. The MOHRE official will aim to facilitate an amicable dispute resolution. If no settlement is reached within 30 days, the MOHRE will refer the dispute to the competent Committee of Settlement of Collective Labour Disputes. The Committee must make a judgment on the dispute within 30 days from the date of the first session (which will be held two days after receiving the complaint).

Judicial remedy

Individual disputes that cannot be resolved by the MOHRE can be referred to the Labour Court. However, once the MOHRE makes this referral, the worker has a maximum of 14 days to register the labour complaint with the competent court. The worker can only work for another employer after obtaining a temporary permit from the MOHRE (workers with an absconding claim against them are ineligible for this permit).

The Labour Court must, within three days from the date of receipt of the file, fix a hearing date. Labour claims that do not exceed AED 500,000 may be referred to the Summary Chambers within the Partial Circuit Division, where the case may be expedited.

For domestic workers, in the event a dispute arises and the parties are unable to settle the matter amicably, the dispute can be referred to the MOHRE, which will review and take the appropriate action. Where the matter remains unresolved, the case may be referred to the Labour Court. No legal action to recover rights may be brought more than three months after the end of the employment relationship.

Labour inspectors are not allowed to enter the employer’s family residence without the consent of its owner, except with the permission of the Public Prosecutor in the following two circumstances: a. A complaint is submitted by the employer or the domestic worker; b. Existence of reasonable evidence of violation of the provisions of the Law or regulations. Labour inspectors can enter recruitment agencies including accommodations provided by the recruitment agency for domestic workers.

Penalties for breaching the law include a fine of no less than AED 5,000 (Five Thousand Dirhams) and no more than AED 1,000,000 (One Million Dirhams).
