Implementation Approach

The process of ‘development of capacity’ or ‘capacity building’ involves:

- Development of knowledge and of theoretical capabilities (through producing and sharing stock-taking reports of international expertise, by reviewing theoretical concepts on the topic and sharing international practices and know-how at training workshops/meetings/sessions or other training events with the aim of enabling to change previously adopted practices)
- Development of practical capabilities (through the application of acquired knowledge and skills for piloting and/or implementing changes in specific national and sectoral contexts taking account of their complexity)
- Dissemination of knowledge and experience (through conducting knowledge-sharing events)
