Global Programme on Skills and Lifelong Learning

Today, 207 million of people are unable to find decent jobs, due to lack of decent work opportunities. At the same time, some employers are struggling to fill vacancies, due to lack of skilled workforce where jobs are. Moreover, 258 million children and youth of all ages are excluded from education and training opportunities, despite their aspiration. This gap between jobs, skills and aspirations is one of the root causes of the vicious cycle of low productivity, lack of decent work and unsustainable development path.

Skills and lifelong learning can bring the change we want. It sparks the aspiration of people and open up new opportunities for decent work. It promotes enterprise productivity. It facilitates structural transformation that is inclusive, sustainable and resilient. It supports livelihoods and promotes health, social cohesion and equality.

The Global Programme on Skills and Lifelong Learning is a comprehensive package of ILO services on skills and lifelong learning.

The Programme serves as an operational arm of the ILO's Global Technical Team on skills and lifelong learning. It will thus complement the on-going efforts of the ILO and its partners to deliver skills and lifelong learning opportunities and facilitate "access to" and "transitions in" the labour market.

Our vision Lifelong learning enables successful economic structural transformation and a human-centred recovery.

Our ambition Empower women, men, enterprises and communities to participate and benefit from high-quality, market-relevant, inclusive lifelong learning to facilitate:

successful individual transitions to and between decent jobs improved productivity and competitiveness of enterprises in a fast-evolving environment inclusive and peaceful societies

just transition to a green economy

By 2028, countries participating in the GPSL3 will have increased capacity and improved systems:

- ▶ to anticipate skills needs and match their programmes with new needs;
- ▶ to design and implement relevant TVET policies, through a tripartite governance structure and with sustained and diversified financing;
- ▶ to design and implement innovative, inclusive and flexible high-quality lifelong learning programmes;
- ▶ to facilitate the integration of individuals into future labour markets where digital jobs are prominent, and the digital transition of TVET systems, institutions and staff.
